

2.8.4 God loves us more than we can imagine

When a person loves us, they can be there for us, hug us, listen to us attentively, give us something, support and defend us.

Compared to the love that God wants to give us, that is still very little. God goes one significant step further.

He wants to dwell within us.

He wants to become one with you personally with the most precious thing He has - His heart.

It is the greatest appreciation imaginable, the greatest attention possible, the greatest devotion conceivable, and the greatest gift that exists in this universe.

He wants to offer everything to us.

In giving us love, how much would God want to give?

God's love is not given according to a limit that says a certain amount is enough. It is a love that wants to give infinitely. Even after giving everything, God will still say,

"I want to live in you because of you."
