

3.1. Consideration of Mystical Experiences

In this chapter, I would like to take an interfaith look at mystical experiences of God.

We begin with the experience of Gautama Buddha at the moment of his perfect enlightenment. Then, we will compare this with the experiences of Christian mystics.

The focus is not on apparitions, visions, or revelations, but on inner experiences through which people feel the love of God within themselves. For me, this represents the most significant transformation that makes it possible for God to become present in humans.

Source URL:

<https://baum-des-lebens.org/the-inner-path/consideration-mystical-experiences>